

FELIX DIAZ HOLDS KEY TO SITUATION

REBEL LEADER IN CONTROL OF VERA CRUZ LAYS PLANS FOR NEW REBEL GOVERNMENT.

IS GAINING STRENGTH

President Madero's Forces Are Weakening All Along the Line While Many Turn to New Commander.

Mexico City, Oct. 17.—In order to crush the rebellion of Felix Diaz at Vera Cruz, not only have the federal armies from the north and south been commanded to converge on that city, but also General Joaquin Peñita, who has been stationed at Esperanza, between the capital and Vera Cruz, on the Mexican railway for the purpose of operating against the rebel general, Aguilar, has been ordered to move on Vera Cruz.

From Mexico City itself, two military trains under command of Colonel Rubio Mavareto with twenty-four pieces of artillery have been sent to Beltrán. Among other officers ordered to the field are Colonels Coxtro, and Ocaranza, both very prominent in the campaign against Zapata in the state of Morelos.

Federals May Revolt. The general public does not seem inclined to share the optimism of the government, and it is considered not improbable that some parts of the army ordered to Vera Cruz will join the rebel general instead of fighting against him. There was an indication of this today when the detachment of 125 men commanded by a captain who was sent from Orizaba by General Beltrán met a rebel outpost a short distance to the south and at once joined the rebels.

The total routing of Diaz from communication will depend on the loyalty of the gun boats which is not likely to be maintained if it is believed. Some of the men manning the gun boats, however, have been ordered to join the rebels. Diaz immediately offered to surrender to Diaz. Commodore Azueta, however, refused to join the movement and had the guns of his boat turned on the city.

Arrived at Vera Cruz. Felix Diaz who escaped the vigilance of the government detectives on Sunday night appeared in Jalapa, the capital of the state of Vera Cruz on Tuesday, but his presence was way to join the rebel army. At Vera Cruz, Diaz was met by Colonel Jose Diaz Ordaz of the 21st infantry was on his way from Orizaba with seventy men of the regiment.

Together, Ordaz and Diaz reached Vera Cruz at daylight yesterday. The 21st infantry was in the barracks when the proposal to join the rebels was submitted and it was accepted by practically the entire personnel of the regiment, but the 19th regiment also stationed there, rejected the proposal and was at once surrounded by the disloyal troops.

Takes Command. Colonel Gutierrez, commander of the 19th infantry, notified the government of his loyalty and was ordered to fight the rebels who numbered nearly 600 while the 19th infantry was only 450 strong. Later in the day these also joined the rebels. This places in the hands of Felix Diaz not only the troops but 680 millimeter guns and a quantity of ammunition.

No disorder occurred in the streets but the banks and other commercial houses fearing the inability of the rebels to maintain order closed their doors. There is little indication of the city suffering from a siege as the rebels command a large agricultural area in cabinet may resign.

President Madero's administration appears to have reached a critical point. The resignation of the cabinet was demanded in the chamber of deputies last night by Deputy Mohono, but the president of the chamber refused to permit discussion and the motion will come up again today. With General Felix Diaz, a nephew of the exiled president, in undisputed control of Vera Cruz, Mexico's most important seaport, reports also have reached here of new uprisings in various parts of the republic, including the city of Pachuca, only 55 miles from the capital.

Resides this the loyalty of the army is questioned. Doubts as to the specific object of the Diaz revolt were removed when he was proclaimed provisional president by Col. Jose Diaz Ordaz, his cousin and commander of the 21st infantry stationed at Vera Cruz.

Diaz Makes Plans. So far advanced are the plans of Diaz and his supporters that they are said already to have selected a provisional cabinet. Among those composing it is Gen. Bernardo Reyes, who now is in the military prison, the capital as the result of the failure of an attempted rebellion a year ago. He has been named President Francisco de La Barra has been slated for the portfolio of foreign affairs, while Alberto Garcia Grandad, who was minister of the interior under De La Barra, is mentioned for the same portfolio.

The department of communications according to the rebel plan is to go to Alberto Roblos Gil, now governor of Jalisco who it is said, may formally throw his state into rebellion as the result of a sharp altercation with President Madero, who recently demanded his resignation.

SCHRANK DOES NOT WORRY OVER DEED

Man Who Attempted to Assassinate Roosevelt "Not Troubled by Conscience" and Sleeps Well.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—"Why shouldn't I sleep well; there's nothing bothering my conscience." This was the remark of John Schrank, the man who fired a 28-calibre bullet into Col. Roosevelt's breast in Milwaukee, Monday, when this morning he was asked by an attendant at the county jail as to how he rested during the night. Schrank apparently slept throughout the greater portion of eight hours without a break as every time the night turnkey made his rounds the prisoner was resting easily and without any indication of discomfort. The prisoner again partook of the usual breakfast prison fare consisting of cereal, bread and coffee and seemed to relish the repast.

Schrank this forenoon drafted a check on a piece of foolscap and with some buttons for markers, given him by the jailer, engaged another prisoner, James Wood, known as "Toronto Jim," in the game. Wood is awaiting trial for burglary. "Tell would-be interviewers I don't want to be disturbed," he said, to Sheriff Arnold. Today Schrank showed the sheriff several pages of written matter which he prepared yesterday, but refused to give them up. Part of the writing was in German and part in English. It was headed "Fortresses are Gull," and consisted of a large number of disjointed sentences pertaining to third term candidates. The writing did not make much sense and was much along the same order of letters found on him at the time of his arrest.

COLONEL'S CONDITION IS REPORTED BETTER

MOST REASSURING REPORT ISSUED BY PHYSICIANS AT ONE O'CLOCK TODAY.

BREATHING IS EASIER

Pulse, Temperature and Respiration Are Normal and Blood Has Dropped Back to Normal.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—The most reassuring bulletin yet issued by the surgeons concerning Col. Roosevelt's condition was given at one o'clock. It read: Pulse, temperature and respiration normal. Blood count has dropped to normal. Breathing seems easier. Dr. J. E. Murphy, Dr. Alexander, Dr. S. Terrell, Chicago.

Dr. Lambert, the family physician, explained that there was no significance to the fact that the bulletin said the bullet would not be removed "at present."

Six physicians making the most extensive survey of Colonel Roosevelt's condition since his arrival at Mercy Hospital this morning found his condition as near normal as a wounded man could be and repeated their assurance that there was no longer cause for worry.

It was also announced that Colonel Roosevelt would not leave the hospital at least until after Sunday. The physicians present were Dr. J. E. Murphy, Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan, Dr. John F. Goldin, Dr. Scurry L. Terrell, Dr. Alexander Lambert and Dr. Wm. B. McAuley. The latter dressed the Colonel's wound while the bulletin was prepared.

The bulletin issued by the physicians said: "Pulse, 72; temperature, 98.8; respiration, 18, all right. Wound dressed looks well; some oozing. Examination of lung by Dr. Alexander Lambert shows lung in good condition. General condition so favorable that unless something unexpected occurs, the bullet will not be removed at present. Signed: Dr. John B. Murphy, Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan, Dr. Alexander Lambert, Dr. Scurry Terrell. Bulletin timed, 9:05 A. M."

The Colonel's breakfast consisted as usual, of bacon, three soft boiled eggs, buttered toast and pot of tea. When the Colonel gave his order he complained that he was feeling so well, he was sure it would not be near enough for a man who already was "almost well."

SUBMITTED COPY OF 1904 BANK ACCOUNT

Republican National Committee's Account Placed in Evidence at Hearing Before Clapp Committee.

Washington, Oct. 17.—A copy of the republican national committee's bank account in 1904 at the Fourth National Bank of New York was placed in evidence before the Clapp committee today and showed one deposit of $240,000 during the latter days of October of that year. That was the sum of the disputed "Harriman" fund and the approximate time of its collection. Lavish use of money by the supporters of President Taft in the Michigan primary campaign was charged before the Clapp committee today by James O. Murwin, a Detroit lawyer. Murwin said that when he and Captain Alger raised $1,500 and offered it to John D. McKay in charge of the Taft campaign, McKay said he had "plenty of money—more than in any campaign before." Murwin testified he understood to say that candidate for delegates to the county conventions were "holding him up" for as much as $300 each. "It is a matter of general knowledge that the primaries in Detroit this year were the most corrupt on both sides ever known," said Mr. Murwin.

He said he knew nothing of Morgan, Harriman, Standard Oil, Frick, New York Life, Mutual Life, or General Electric contributions to the fund until after election.

TRIED TO GET INTO JAIL; WAS KILLED

Muskegon, Mich., Oct. 17.—Edward Fromme, tried to break into the county jail here early today and was shot to death by Sheriff Fred Nelson. When he was sober Fromme was an orderly man with ordinary habits and ideas of life, but when Fromme had imbibed copiously in the "cup that cheers" he becomes obsessed by a desire to break into somebody else's house to sleep. It was this obsession following a bibulous nocturnal peregrination which culminated in his death.

Washington, Oct. 17.—The formal declaration of war against Serbia and Bulgaria was published by the Turkish government today. The note addressed by the Turkish government to the Bulgarian and Serbian legations here said it was impossible longer to obtain peace notwithstanding that it was the ardent desire of the Porte to do so.

It therefore was obliged to put an end to the missions of the Bulgarian and Serbian legations and the diplomats were invited to withdraw their passports and leave Constantinople at the earliest moment.

In Defense. The note stated the step was taken in consequence of the recent note handed into the Turkish government by the Balkan states which Turkey considered constant interference with her internal affairs.

Forces Mobilized. A second factor was the mobilization undertaken by Serbia and Bulgaria, and the third reason was the daily skirmishes on the frontier.

Greeks Leave. Athens, Greece, Oct. 17.—The Turkish minister to Greece left Athens today without complying with the formalities usual in such cases and without asking for his passports.

Transport Ready. Algiers, Oct. 17.—An escort of four Greek destroyers is conveying the Greek steamer Macedonia on board, Bulgarians and Serbians on board, who are returning from America to join their regiments to fight against the Turks.

WIFE OF GUN MAN PLACED ON STAND

Mrs. William Rosenberg, Wife of "Lefty Louis" Corroborates Story of "Bald Jack" Rose.

New York, Oct. 17.—Mrs. William Rosenberg, wife of "Lefty Louis" one of the four gun men charged with shooting Herman Rosenthal to death was a witness for the state today in the trial of police Lieut. Charles Becker as the instigator of the murder. The district attorney's intention to place her on the stand was unopposed and Becker's counsel made vigorous, but futile attempts to bar her testimony from the record. Mrs. Rosenberg's testimony was corroborative of a portion of the story told by "Bald Jack" Rose, the witness stand last Saturday. She said that Rose had come with Sam Schepps to her home on May 12 to Louis about helping to get bail for Jack Zelig, the gang leader killed the other day who had just been arrested on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. "Louis" was sick in bed," she declared, "and Schepps and Rose went into his room and talked 20 minutes with him. They talked about Zelig." Mrs. Rosenberg added on cross examination that she was not testifying to help her husband or with hope of his receiving leniency. "Lefty" said, she said, that she would take the stand for she had written him she would. The blond headed wife of the gun man is as one of several witnesses who corroborated portions of Rose's story. Two telephone operators testified that Becker received a call in the early morning hours of the day of the murder.

DEDICATE MONUMENT TO KEYSTONE ARMIES

Culpeper, Va., Oct. 17.—In the presence of a representative assemblage, including veterans of both the Union and Confederate armies, a monument commemorating the valor of the soldiers of Pennsylvania who are buried in the National Cemetery here was dedicated today.

The memorial is of granite and is 13 feet square at the base and rises 30 feet, being surmounted by a large granite ball. The monument was not erected in commemoration of any particular battle, for Culpeper was the center of a number of skirmishes and battles, nor for any particular organization.

The inscription on the base of the monument is as follows: "Pennsylvania remembers with solemn pride her heroic sons, who here repose in known and unknown graves. May their sacrifices be an inspiration to the people and promote civic virtue, love of liberty, peace, prosperity and happiness in all the states. Dilecti decorum est pro patria mori."

Grecian Minister Does Not Wait for Any Formality—Recruits From America Nearing Their Destination.

Constantinople, Oct. 17.—The formal declaration of war against Serbia and Bulgaria was published by the Turkish government today.

The note addressed by the Turkish government to the Bulgarian and Serbian legations here said it was impossible longer to obtain peace notwithstanding that it was the ardent desire of the Porte to do so.

Turkish Troops Advance. Constantinople, Oct. 17.—Hostilities were opened at half past two this morning by the Turkish troops at various points along the Bulgarian and Serbian frontiers. The divisions of the Turkish army were ordered to make a simultaneous forward movement. In giving the order for a general advance, the Ottoman minister of war mentioned only that the movement be made along the frontiers of Bulgaria and Serbia.

There is a powerful Turkish army concentrated near the Greek frontier but this has not yet been put in motion. The Ottoman government this morning issued orders to the Bulgarian and Serbian ministers that they will leave Constantinople immediately.

Break Through Blockade. Athens, Greece, Oct. 17.—Fighting between the Greek army and the Turkish forces stationed along the frontiers began early today. A daring feat was accomplished this morning when the commander of the gun boats A. & D. at two o'clock made a dash to force the Turkish blockade through the narrow entrance to the Gulf of Arta, one side being occupied by the Greeks and one by the Turks. They were observed from the Turkish fort at Preveza which dominates the entrance and heavy firing was turned upon them which was returned with much spirit. They succeeded in fighting their way through and at 4:30 reached the Greek town of Vonitza on the south shore of the bay with very little damage.

Leaves For Frontier. Sofia, Oct. 17.—King Ferdinand and his staff have left for the headquarters of the Bulgarian army near the Turkish frontier. It is believed he will issue at once a proclamation to the nation for a formal declaration of war from that position.

War Is General. London, Eng., Oct. 17.—War today became general throughout the Balkan peninsula. Turkey which for a week or more has been fighting with Montenegro has issued a formal declaration of hostilities against Serbia and Bulgaria. Greece for some reason was not mentioned in the official document delivered to the Serbian and Bulgarian legations at Constantinople and the Greek minister has not been asked to leave the Turkish capital as were his Serbian and Bulgarian colleagues.

FORMED HEALTH CLUB AFTER THE LECTURE

FIFTY NAMES SECURED AT MEETING LAST EVENING FOR NEWLY ORGANIZED CLUB.

FLYNN WILL REMAIN

Health Evangelist Will Stay Here to Deliver Special Lecture Tonight—Health Club Meets After Lecture.

Steps toward the organization of a health club in this city were taken last evening at the meeting at the Methodist church at which W. Earl Flynn, the health evangelist, spoke, and urged the formation of such an organization. The speaker's talk was largely given over to advocating the health club for Janesville but he spent some time in discussing colds and catarrh and in giving exercises for the prevention of both. At the close of the meeting fifty names were secured as members of the club to receive five lessons in the course which Miss Bosworth, of the state hospital of New Jersey, gives, and it was predicted by Mr. Flynn that when the class meets tonight at the church, the number would be doubled. He also stated that he would remain in the city today to deliver a lecture tonight at the church on the subject "How to Live a Hundred Years."

In his opening remarks Mr. Flynn summed up briefly what he had gone over in his previous lectures. Taking up the subject of the evening's lecture, "Colds, Catarrh, Grippe, Pneumonia and Tuberculosis," he said: "Colds are germ diseases and as germs are contagious, colds are contagious. By and by we will realize this fact, and to protect the children from such contagion our schools will have physicians to look after the children who have germ diseases. That is the condition of our schools."

Speaking of the danger of contagion Mr. Flynn said that a rat brought to London the plague that wiped out the lives of seventy thousand people. The rat got onto a ship in Asia, where the plague originated, and was met when it landed by a flea, who got the germ from the rat, and bit an Englishman. The Englishman got the plague from the flea and spread it among his relatives and neighbors, and before the plague was wiped out, seventy thousand people were dead.

"Be afraid of a rat as you are of a snake," said the speaker, and of the two the rat is the more dangerous, because you know the snake is poison and would look out for it. And dogs and cats the same. Some people keep an old dog in the house and let it kiss the baby and blow its germ-laden breath in the baby's face. Out of seventeen dogs examined in Boston, four of them had tuberculosis. Then there is the old milkman. Has your committee visited the dairy barns that furnish the milk supply for Janesville? Do you know if your cows have dirt, germ-laden hands? Do you know if his barns, his cans, or his cattle are diseased? Have his cows been put to the tuberculosis test? It is your business to protect the children. Has that been done in Janesville? One doctor cannot go ahead and say this or that with regard to the danger from careless handling of milk. You ought to have a committee to back him up, and see that the milk dealers do as they should.

"What are you going to do with the baker? Does he take the bread off the wagon and allow the dust and dirt of the street to blow on it? The sweeper sweeps the dust and manure on the street into a pile, then the wind comes along and blows it along, and it settles on the bread and the pies and the cakes. What right have they to bring my bread into my house all covered with dust and dirt? Haven't we the right to say, 'You bring that bread to me in sanitary, dust-proof packages. If I want the dirt, I'll go out into the garden and get it.'"

"The doctors need help in this work. It needs public sentiment to push the work. One man couldn't go into a bakery shop and say to the proprietor, 'Here you do so-and-so.' If he did the proprietor would probably kick him out and say business, get out. I will run my business, get out. 'I take numbers to make a noise, and to make that noise heard.'"

"I want you to get after your butcher. He went into a shop in another town, and a lady came in looking for some meat for dinner. There were several pieces lying on the block, and I watched her and she took the piece on which I had counted 'seventeen flies. Ugh! And probably each one of those flies had been out in the street, and washed off their feet in a pool of dirty water where the horses stood, and then came in and walked all over that piece of meat. The fly is the worst carrier of disease we have today. If you see one, swat it, even if you have to run down the street without shoes or stockings to get it. Flies are the most dangerous things outside of a jail."

"What about night air? Night air is the finest air you can get at night. Take all you can get of it. Never sleep with your windows down, winter or summer. Never sleep in a room where there is no way to get artificial heat of some kind, but don't try to exclude all of the cold air. Dead cold air is the hardest kind of air to heat."

The speaker gave an illustration from his own experience to illustrate the power of suggestion and auto-suggestion. "Where there is a pure stream of blood," he said, "there is no disease, but all disease you hear about and read about stamp themselves on your mind. There are auto-suggestion cures and those are just as serious as real cures."

Regarding drafts and wet feet as causes of colds, Mr. Flynn said: "You couldn't pull a cold out of a draft. If you want to get away from cold germs, get in a draft, for where there is a current of air, the cold germs do not get a chance to get at you."

"Some persons buy fannels when winter comes. You can't go to Heaven if you wear fannels. The speaker said the suit he wears is the one given him by his mother a number of years ago; it doesn't wear out very easily, and he always wears the same thickness, summer and winter. 'Keep your body as near all-face as you can, at night, if you do not want to have colds or la grippe.'"

Colds, catarrh, grippe and pneumonia are caused by germs and eating too much. The germs attack the body when it is fatigued. They haven't the nerve to do it at any other time. But don't be foolish when your body is full of poison, and don't sit in a draft or get your feet wet. When in that condition you are fatigued and fatigue is one of the greatest things to give the germs a chance to attack. It destroys the judgment, the physical and moral character of the person, and you have only the brute in him left. If you want to ruin a woman, ruin a man, just take them when they're fatigued."

Taking up the matter of organizing the health club, Mr. Flynn said, "We're going to teach people how to live, eat, and breathe right. We're going to stop this mortality race; we're going to stop this crime, and we're going to clean up this whole city." He called upon some of the pastors to get the sentiment of the audience with regard to the formation of the club, and Rev. J. W. Laughlin spoke enthusiastically in favor of the proposition. Mr. Flynn also explained the plans for the five classes to be conducted by Miss Bosworth in this city, but at first only a few signified their willingness to join the club, and the speaker was inclined to compare Janesville with Beloit, and he said his experience in Beloit had been the bitterest pill he had had to swallow. His visit to Beloit yesterday was spoken of rather bitterly.

After a further explanation had been given by Mr. Flynn and Miss Bosworth, the fifty names he desired in order that a class might be organized in Janesville were secured.

MISS ETHEL POND IS WEDDED AT MADISON

Former Janesville Young Lady Becomes Bride of Matthew Patterson Wednesday Afternoon.

Miss Ethel Pond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew C. Pond, formerly of Janesville, was wedded to Mr. Matthew Patterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Patterson of North Freedom, at a charming home wedding reception at afternoon. Miss Pond, who until recently lived here, has many friends in Janesville.

The home had been beautifully decorated for the occasion. A bank and canopy of autumn foliage, interspersed with palms and white roses, was arranged in the parlor for the bride couple. Thompson's orchestra discoursed appropriate music before and during the ceremony and as the bride and groom and the officiating clergyman, Dr. E. L. Eaton, of the university, took their places, Mr. Joseph Gallagher, of Racine, a member of the University Glee Club gave a splendid vocal rendition of "For You Alone and Because."

Dr. Eaton performed the marriage service for Miss Pond's father and mother twenty-two years ago in Janesville. The young couple were unattended.

The bride wore a gown of white charmeuse covered with crepe chiffon. Her only jewels were a pearl necklace, the gift of the groom, and a diamond pin, belonging to her mother. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

After the service, congratulations were showered upon Mr. and Mrs. Patterson and about 400 guests, the wedding guests went to the home of Mrs. Hamilton W. Main, next door, where the wedding dinner was served. Covers were placed for sixty. The decorations in the main home were carried out in accordance with the other color scheme. The bride's table bore a basket of pink roses and was lighted with pink candles. Smiles were festooned about on the streamers extended from the chandeliers. A number of the young girl and boy friends of the bride and groom were present.

The out of town guests were: The parents of the groom, his three brothers, John, of South Dakota, Francis, and Hugh, of North Freedom; Mr. and Mrs. John Rumpf, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Borkenagren, also of North Freedom; Mr. Bernard McNelly, of Springfield; Dr. and Mrs. George Spencer of Evansville; Mrs. A. George Brandt and the two heavy draft horses he was driving had a narrow escape when they went over a steep twenty foot embankment at the Clark and Fisher sand pits at the foot of Main street this morning. Brandt had his wagon loaded and was preparing to start away. In some manner the lines became tangled and the horses started to back and before they could be stopped, wagon, team and driver were tumbling down the perpendicular wall of the pit. The team was badly tangled in the harness which had to be cut off to allow them to rise but neither the horses nor driver were hurt.

Atkinson has been away from Janesville for the last eight or ten years, only making occasional visits here. Three or four weeks ago he returned to this city and his relatives noticed that he was acting strangely. He is a single man and at one time was a railway boiler inspector.

INTERESTING STORY STARTS IN PRESENT ISSUE OF GAZETTE

"The Lady of the Mount" Promises to Be Most Exciting From Opening Chapter to Close.

An interesting story unfolds itself in the opening chapters of "The Lady of the Mount," which will be found on another page. This story is in line with the Gazette's endeavor to procure the most interesting serials that are offered to newspapers and believe its readers will find something worth looking for every day. A fact for thought is that if books which appear as serials in this paper through the year, were purchased at 50 cents apiece, it would represent a cost higher than the subscription price of the paper, so that the serial stories alone really pay this, and all of the other reading matter in this excellent paper may be considered as coming to you without cost.

EXHIBITION OF GOLF BY EVANS AT LINKS

Playing of Young Chicago Golfer in Foursome Yesterday Best Ever Witnessed Here.

The finest exhibition of golf playing ever witnessed on the links of the Mississippi Golf club was given yesterday in the playing of Charles Evans, Jr., of Chicago, one of the foremost golfers in the United States. Mr. Evans and J. H. Lambert of Chicago came to Janesville to give an exhibition of the great Scotch game, in fulfillment of an engagement made for earlier in the summer, which they were unable to keep. In a foursome in which Evans and J. P. Baker were matched, against Mr. Lambert and Al Schaller of this city, the former pair won. Two rounds were played in the morning and two in the afternoon. In the first round, in the afternoon, Mr. Evans covered the course in 40 and in the second round in 35. The playing of all in the foursome was better in the morning than in the afternoon. In the afternoon rounds, Mr. Evans played in 38 and 39. The second round, in the morning when he made a score of 35 was as near perfect golf as is possible.

Mr. Evans made himself popular with the local golfers both for his playing and for his quiet, unassuming way. He is one of the best golfers in the country, and although but twenty-two years of age, shows no signs of undue pride over his achievements. His drives were all perfect, and all parts of his game were splendidly played. Thirty-five out of thirty-six played from the tee were perfect, and in one pulled into the rough, going to second, but he made a great recovery from the rough so he was able to make the hole in bogie. In brassie work, putting and approaching, he also displayed his skill. The course was an entirely new one to him, and a hilly one, too, but the exhibition he gave showed that he is deserving of the reputation he has won.

Mr. Evans and Mr. Lambert were entertained at a star dinner at the club house at six o'clock last evening.

The Freshman-Sophomore football contest will be staged in the near future. Both teams have been practicing faithfully in the past week much to the surprise of the students. The Freshman eleven will be piloted by Victor Bleasdale, the speedy halfback of the younger class. Mark Jones a first team tackle, will captain the Sophomores. A spirited contest is assured but the date is not yet certain.

The regular eleven are still grinding away on their new formations which they will use against Jefferson on Saturday morning, if it becomes necessary. The hard knocks which the men received in the still Northwestern game, seem to be healed up and the Jefferson squad can expect a hard game, when they meet the locals.

Dog's Showing of Gratitude. Woolwich (England) postmen possess a famous dog. Jack is a terrier who about 13 years ago was found wounded outside Woolwich postoffice. Mr. Haddock, one of the postmen, stopped to bind up the dog's wound, and next morning, at the same hour, Jack returned to the same spot for similar attention, which was given by the same kindly postman. From the day he got better, 13 years ago, the grateful dog has accompanied Mr. Haddock on his daily three miles round, running home at the end of it to his owner in Charlton. Only lately, when old age has asserted its tyranny, has Jack missed an occasional day. During Mr. Haddock's annual 14 days' leave many postmen tried to get Jack to go round with them, but he consistently refused. It is calculated that Jack has walked over 12,000 miles in these daily expeditions of gratitude.

MADE IN JANESVILLE WEEK IS CERTAIN TO BE MOST SUCCESSFUL

Secretary Lane of the Commercial Club Busy With Plans for Coming Exhibit at Auditorium.

What promises to be the biggest exhibit of "Made in Janesville" products ever held, will open at the Auditorium the week of November 11th. Secretary Lane of the Commercial Club has plans for the week that bid fair to be most entertaining and instructive. Already considerable of the floor space has been engaged and new exhibits are being added daily. The entire program for the week has not yet been definitely arranged but one feature that Mr. Lane is working on is a house build and furnished by Janesville products. The plan to make the same week as the exhibit, "Economic Week" for the city is meeting with the approval of the merchants generally and this as an added attraction should bring many visitors to the city for the week. Mr. Lane recently secured a reduction in the freight rate on cotton shoddy from Louisville to Janesville from fifty-four to forty-one cents.

HEARING WAS HELD WITH DOORS CLOSED

Adverse Examination in Fifteen Thousand Dollar Damage Case Takes Place—Press and Public Excluded.

At ten this morning an adverse examination of the defendant in the suit brought by Estelle Sinnett Peters of Dundee, Illinois, against Charles Peters of Milwaukee was held behind closed doors before Court Commissioner Marshall P. Richardson. The suit promises to have many sensational features, the plaintiff alleging that the defendant lived with her after an alleged mock marriage, when he was already married, and she asks for fifteen thousand dollars damages. The papers in the suit were filed in the circuit court on August 26th last although the action was started last March and Mr. Peters placed under five thousand dollars bond not to leave the jurisdiction of the court. When the examination was called this morning, W. H. Dougherty, attorney for the defense, objected to the presence of the public or newspaper men at the hearing. He based his contention that the testimony that might be brought out was of highly immoral character and it published would have no effect except to corrupt the public. He stated that a great injustice would be done by publication of such testimony. Mr. Richardson sustained Mr. Dougherty's motion and the hearing in fact was held in private. The testimony would be immoral. The defendant in his answer alleges that it is a case of mistaken identity and that some other man has taken his name. This is the first time that the press and public have been excluded from hearings of this kind and the outcome of the case will be watched with interest by the public generally.

HAVE BEEN MARRIED FIFTY-FOUR YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Stanton Quietly Celebrate Anniversary at Home On Cornelia Street.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Stanton are very quietly celebrating their fifty-fourth wedding anniversary at their home 403 Cornelia street. The late Rev. Grinnell performed the ceremony fifty-four years ago today, which was the bride's seventeenth birthday anniversary. There were seven children born to this couple: Frank, who died in infancy, George, passed away 1902. The five surviving are: Charles A., Harry R. and Merton J. Stanton, all of Beloit, and Mrs. Len Jerg and Mrs. M. Tucker of this city. Their are seven grandchildren, all girls.

The occasion is being very quietly celebrated today on account of both being in very poor health.

DESPONDENT LABORER TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

Joseph Riley Shot Self in Head at Home of Mrs. Ida Oakley on Milton Avenue Today.

Despondent over the settlement to be made of his mother's estate, and suffering from the effects of prolonged and excessive drinking, Joseph Riley, a laborer living at the home of Mrs. Ida Oakley, 1235 Milton avenue, took his own life early this morning by shooting himself through the right temple with a 32-caliber revolver. Riley came home last night between 11:30 and 12:00 o'clock, entering the house by the front door. He went into the kitchen and closed the door behind him, taking with him the lamp which the family had been accustomed to leave burning. He had been in the house but a few minutes before Miss Ida Oakley and her mother heard a shot. Mrs. Oakley at once started a search of the house. After passing through the other rooms, she entered the kitchen where she found Riley lying on the floor near the table. A large wound was in his right temple and he was bleeding profusely. An over-turned chair near the table showed that he had been seated when he fired the shot.

The first action of Miss Oakley was to telephone the police station from the home of a neighbor. Patrolmen Harry Smith and Morrissey at once started for the scene of the shooting in the patrol wagon, picking up Patrolman Dorn down town. Dr. Charles Sussland had also been summoned and arrived promptly, but Riley died ten minutes after the police came. At the request of his sister, Mrs. Bell Daggett, 270 South River street, the remains were removed to the Ryan undertaking rooms.

Riley had made his home with Mrs. Oakley for four years, taking care of the horse and cow and doing chores about the premises. He also worked as a teamster, and for some time was night watchman at the Wisconsin Carriage company's factory. His birthplace was in this city.

The sole survivors of Riley are three half-sisters, Mrs. Belle Daggett and Miss Katherine Stockman of this city and Mrs. Edward McCarthy of Fairchild, Wis., and one half-brother, Hugh Stockman, of this city.

VOTING MACHINES WILL NOT BE VOTE

County Clerk States That Ballots Only Will be Used at Coming General Election.

Voting machines will not be used in Rock county at the coming general election on November 5, according to a statement by County Clerk Howard W. Lee today. There has been some doubt as to the right to use the machines under the provision of chapter 633, laws of 1911, with reference to the manner of voting the referendum and presidential ballots. According to the arrangement on the machines it is impossible to cast a separate vote for each elector as is required by the law. The law forbids the use of the machines for one ticket and ballots for the other so that all the voting in November will be by ballot.

The area of high barometer that was over the Ohio valley and the Northeastern states yesterday has moved southward and is now on the middle Atlantic coast. The fair weather that it brought in earlier in the week still persists over the greater part of the country.

The influence of the area of low barometer in Western Canada is felt throughout the West, where southerly winds and warmer weather prevail. This disturbance is attended by high winds, and rains on the north Pacific coast. There is possibility of a secondary depression forming in connection with this depression, over the Southern Plains, and causing bad weather in the Middle states.

The barometric depression in the Gulf of Mexico is approaching the western end of the Gulf. Heavy rains are reported at Corpus Christi, with high winds.

Tragedy in Bird Migration.

Very many of the birds that start for the south never reach it. Not the least of the dangers on the way is the encroachment of the dazzling electric lights, tall buildings, telephone and telegraph wires, and other obstructions in the cities, especially on cloudy nights, when the light is low. At such times the morning reveals the tragedies of the night, when little bruised bodies lying here and there, in the streets tell of the havoc wrought. Terrible sufferers in this respect are the warblers. Also, countless thousands of migrating birds, have perished miserably by being blown out to sea by adverse gales; and blizzards and unusually severe snowstorms have claimed unnumbered victims.—H. M. Laing in the Outing Magazine.

Now Comes the Golf Faker.

A ball played by a golfer at Weston-super-Mare struck a skylark, so we read, and cut the bird's head off. You should hear us tell our story of the golf ball which stuck in a bird's beak in the middle of its flight. The bird flew off with the ball to its nest. Fortunately for the player, the bird had made its nest in the next hole.—London Globe.

Major Judson has been a member of the U. S. board of engineers for rivers and harbors; an instructor of military engineering in the U. S. Mr. Butler H. Bates, 72 E. 12th St., Fond du Lac relates: "Kidney trouble bothered me for a long time. I had also a severe pain across my back and other irregularities when I heard of Foley Kidney Pills. I got them and began taking them with the result that the pain left me and the action of my kidneys became normal and after taking four bottles, I am better than I have been for years." DINNER STORIES

Rag Jones was a witness at a trial in the courthouse last week. He was testifying as to a conversation he had on the phone with the defendant in a civil suit. "Did you call him up on your own initiative?" the lawyer asked Rag. "No," says Rag, "I used the one in the general store, I can't afford one myself."

"Are you interested in the recall?" "Not yet," replied the habitual candidate. "What I am interested in is a means of getting somewhere in the first place."

Aunt Caroline and the partner of her woes evidently found connubial bliss a misnomer; for the sounds of war were often heard down in the little cabin in the hollow. Finally the pair were haled into court, and the dusky lady entered a charge of abusive language against her spouse. The judge, who had known them all his life, endeavored to pour oil on the troubled waters.

"What did he say to you, Caroline?" he asked.

"Why, Judge, I jes' can't tell you all dat man say to me."

"Does he ever use hard language?" "Does yo' mean cussin'?" Yassuh, not wif his mouf, but he always givin' me dem cussory glances."

Curtis Guild, former governor of Massachusetts, was once asked for the funniest story he ever heard. This is the story he told.

"And Irishman and a Jew were discussing the great men who had belonged to each race, and, as may be expected, got into a heated argument. Finally the Irishman said: 'They listen. For every great Jew, ye can name, ye may pull out one of me whiskers, and for every great Irishman I can name I'll pull out one of yours. Is it a go?'

"They consented, and Pat reached over, got hold of a whisker and said, 'Robert Emmet,' and pulled.

"'Moses,' said the Jew, and pulled one of Pat's tushers.

"'Dan O'Connell,' said Pat, and took another.

"'Abraham,' said Ike, helping himself again.

"'Patrick Henry,' returned Pat, with a vicious yank.

"The twelve apostles," said the Jew, taking a handful of whiskers.

"Pat emitted a roar of pain, snatched the Jew's beard and yelled, 'The Ancient Order of Hibernians!'

The late Thomas B. Reed, when a lad, was requested to bail out a small boat that had been leaking badly, and was almost full of water.

"I can't do it," replied Tom. "It's unconstitutional."

"What do you mean?" inquired the owner of the boat.

"The Constitution of the United States," replied the future statesman, "that 'excessive bail shall not be required' of any man."

"SYRUP OF FIGS" FOR INDIGESTION, BILIOUSNESS AND CONSTIPATION

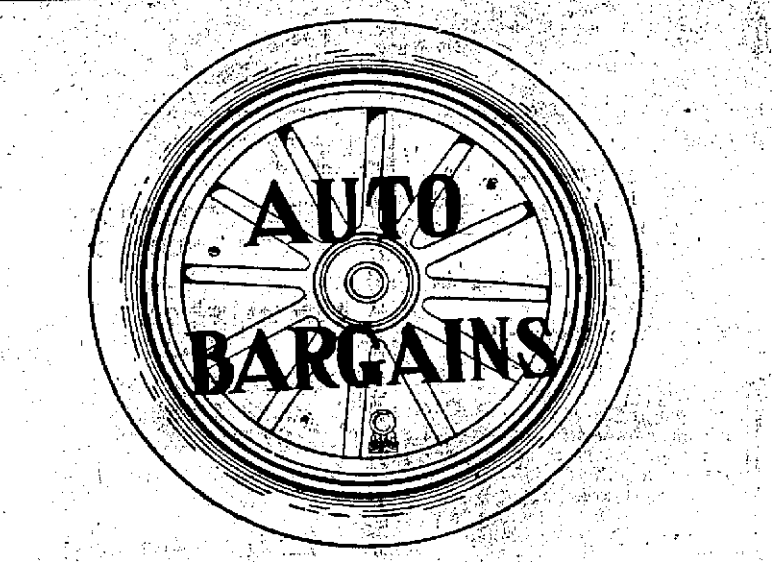

BETTER THAN CASTOR OIL, CALOMEL OR CATHARTICS TO CLEANSE YOUR STOMACH, LIVER AND 30 FEET OF BOWELS. HARMLESS LAXATIVE FOR MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

Primitive folks did not need laxatives. They lived outdoors, ate plenty of fruit, and all of their food was coarse. We modern people are different. We exercise too little, eat little fruit, and our food is too fine—too rich.

We simply can't have our ten yards of bowels clogged up, liver choked with sour bile and stomach full of foul effete matter and feel well. It means that the food and waste retained in the stomach and thirty feet of bowels ferment and decay. The decay creates poisons, gases and acids, and those poisons are sucked into the blood through the very ducts intended to suck in the nutriment. Then we have sick headache, become dull, bilious, tongue coated, nervous, meals don't digest, and we feel miserable all over. So we must make our choice. We must live like primitive folks, else we must take artificial means to move the excess bile and waste matter on and out of the system.

The safest, most harmless and effective stomach, liver, and bowel cleanser and regulator for men, women and children—is delicious Syrup of Figs, which doesn't irritate, gripe or weaken. Its effect is the effect of fruits. It is composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics. Don't think you are drugging yourself. Syrup of Figs can be constantly used without harm.

Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," and see on the label that it is prepared by The California Fig Syrup Company. This is the only genuine—the old reliable. Refuse, with contempt, the so-called Fig Syrup imitations, sometimes offered to deceive you. Advertisement

Ugly Pimples Have All Gone

Face a Sight, But in a Short Time
Stuart's Calcium Waters
Work Wonders.

Many an otherwise pretty girl is distracted with her appearance. Poor girl. She doesn't yet know that Stuart's Calcium Waters will quickly transform her into a perfect dream of loveliness. And many a young man with tender skin just growing a blemish, all the face creams in the world are nothing but masks. They do not overcome pimples, but merely allay surface irritation.

Skin-health must come from within. Skin-tissue is made from the blood, and as it is a tendency of nature to throw off a good share of impurities through the skin, naturally impurities gather on the surface in the form of pimples, blotches, blackheads and other eruptions. But Stuart's Calcium Waters have a remarkable activity in the blood which seeks the skin as an outlet for its impurities. These are thrown off in invisible mist or gas, are consumed in the oxygen of the air and in a few days all imperfections of circulation and of skin-health are overcome.

All blemishes disappear and the skin becomes as clear and smooth as a baby's. Go to the drug store today—any druggist can supply them—and get a box of Stuart's Calcium Waters for trial. They will cost you only 50 cents but are really worth many dollars to you if your face is marred by ugly pimples, blotches, blackheads, etc. Convince yourself by actual test that Stuart's Calcium Waters are the most effective blood and skin purifiers in the world.

BELOIT IS JEALOUS OF MERCHANTS HERE

Business Men Won't Buy County Directories Containing Janesville Advertising Is Charge.

Beloit, business men will not buy county directories in which there appear advertisements of Janesville merchants, is the charge of one of the representatives of the Wright directory company of Milwaukee who is canvassing the city for a new directory. This is one of the reasons why the Wright company will not publish a county directory, for they say, they would get practically no patronage from the Beloit people. The Beloit business men insist, in addition, that they get a large part of their trade from Illinois and get the smaller part from Rock county. The company lost money on the last county directory it is said, largely for the reason that there was practically no sale for the books in the state line city.

Janesville business men, however, do not give the support which they might to the local directory, and the representatives of the compiling firm states that it is immaterial whether they do the work again or unless better results are forthcoming. Some of the representatives of the compiling firm to Janesville for the compilation and soliciting work. It was stated that there were three business men on River street who would not buy directories for the reason that they could go to the drug store near by and make any investigation they wished. In one block there are five business men who have decided to buy one directory between them each contributing 60 cents. It is this attitude which makes the work for the directory company in Janesville discouraging.

JANESVILLE GRAVEL FOR STATE CAPITOL

Practically All Used in Construction Came From Local Deposits—Big Shipments Made.

Practically all of the gravel used in the construction of the new state capitol building at Madison, has been and is being shipped from this city, where it is loaded at the pits of the Janesville Sand & Gravel Company. Large quantities have also been shipped to fill in the grounds. Janesville gravel will also be used in the construction of a lock on the Yahara river, between lakes Monona and Waubesa, and shipments will begin this week. Gravel, cement, sand, and other supplies will be unloaded directly from the cars into capacious barges which will be towed to the lock site. An average of forty-two cars of gravel a day is being shipped from the Janesville Company's plants, and more would be shipped if cars could be secured. The plant near the sugar factory is running day and night.

EMPHASIZE VALUE DAIRY COMMISSION

Commissioner Emery in Report to Governor Dwells on Work Done for State During Year.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Oct. 17.—The value of the state dairy and food commission to the state is made the subject of statistics in a report to the governor by State Dairy and Food Commissioner J. Q. Emery, who declares that it effects a saving to the people of $10,000,000 in money and an amount in good health and business property not to be estimated. This is stated as a return to the people of $200 for every dollar invested in the commission each year.

The cost is $48,650 per year and the savings are computed as follows: Saving to cheese producers, $1,340,000; to butter producers, $1,340,000; to insect oil users, $112,500; on adulterated foods, $6,000,000; by weights and measures law, $1,250,000.

The enforcement of the laws against food adulteration has cost two cents per capita, and it is considered that the commission's work in guarding against adulterated cheese and through educational work for improving its quality has raised the average price one cent a pound, amounting in 1911 to $1,640,000. In the same way, continued the report, improvement of the sanitary conditions of creameries and dairies as a result of the commission's activities, has improved the state's butter supply, and it is said that wholesale men estimate butter is now worth on the average of one cent more per pound. In 1911 this increase in value was estimated at $1,340,000.

Under the new weights and measures law, 34,592 tests of scales, weights and measures had been made up to June 30, 1912, and 29 per cent had been found to be correct. This saving, based on the average cost of the Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota and Michigan commissions of $56,075. Wisconsin's is $48,650, according to the report. Wisconsin has 3,048 cheese factories, creameries and condenseries; Illinois has 306; Iowa 503; Michigan 531 and Minnesota 927. Wisconsin, it is shown, has 781 more than all these states together. The report says that during the Peck administration the average cost for each member of the commission was $2,683; her of the commission was $2,683; now it is $1,912, (for the past two years).

SIDEWALK SKETCHES.

FURNACES.
(By Howard L. Rann.)

THE furnace is a neat mechanical contrivance which enables people to bask in their stocking feet whenever they are in a basking mood. The liveliest form of basking, however, is done when the furnace goes out and throws a 30-cent low-zero chill in to the hardwood floors.

The cheapest and most popular kind of furnace is the hot-air variety, which will heat every room in the house except the ones abutting on the north wind. When there is no wind at all, the hot-air furnace will back out of the pipes leading to the dining room and parlor and vote all of its energy to the tired girl's room. Every time this kind of a furnace is fed with soft coal it will allow several cubic feet of gas to escape into the apartments above, causing the inhabitants to wheeze en masse and en rapport.

Hot-air furnaces are sometimes constructed of decayed heating stoves, which breathe fiercely through an aromatic register and deposit thick layers of dust on the furniture. This style of furnace aims to go out unexpectedly about four times a week and freeze the members of the family to the counterpane.

A furnace rarely gives the owner any trouble in the summer time, but along about the middle of January it will break down, apparently in perfect health, and have to have some new $7 grates. While these are being ordered, shipped and put in by a delivery plumber, the family will take turns sitting both feet in the kitchen oven. The only part of a furnace which perfectly at all times is the cold air inlet.

Furnaces are regulated by a costly device known as a thermostat. This article is guaranteed to keep the house at 72 degrees above zero, if the right kind of fuel is used and the

HEAVY FIRE LOSSES IN WINTER SEASON

Bulletin Issued by State Fire Marshal Indicates Danger From Fires at This Time.

A bulletin issued by the state fire marshal, T. M. Purcell, Madison, indicates the danger from fires during the winter months. It gives figures for last year and will be of interest to property owners. It is as follows: "What shall the harvest be the coming winter? The statistics from our annual report given below, eloquently tell the pathetic story of needless sacrifice of life and property in Wisconsin, through heating plant and chimney fires, during the twelve months ending July 1st, 1912.

No.	Cause of Fires.	Loss
23	Ashes against wood.	$ 17,005
11	Defective boilers.	53,300
239	Defective chimneys.	204,440
15	Defective fire-places.	11,050
4	Defective furnace pipes.	23,950
11	Defective stoves.	10,825
24	Overheated furnaces.	40,935
15	Overheated furnace pipes.	30,845
67	Sparks from chimneys.	35,075
16	Sparks from smokestacks.	23,040
90	Stove pipes too near wood.	51,765
108	Stoves too near wood.	95,140

From newspaper clippings we learn that during the same period twenty-eight persons died in the flames, in this state, and eighteen were seriously injured, as the fire stole upon them like a thief in the night, cutting off all avenue of escape. "This sad tale seriously reflects upon our intelligence and care as intelligent citizens would have prevented most of these fires, and saved lives and property."

"Why 239 chimney fires, when proper construction, careful inspection and needed repair would prevent them? Or 108 needless fires from stoves, placed near walls and partitions or on wooden floors, without metal protection? Or 90 fires due to stove pipes, placed too close to wood?"

"The mere statement of the causes suggests the proper remedy. "We hope that this statement will cause our citizens to inspect their own premises, and to promptly remedy all defective conditions liable to cause fire. If it does not then this warning will be in vain."

"Before the heavy fires are again started, have a competent man inspect your heating plant, stoves and chimneys, and lose no time in making the needed repairs and changes. You may be the next unfortunate to have your property reduced to ashes, and perhaps your dear ones sacrificed on the altar of your own carelessness. "Insurance may indemnify you in part, for your property loss, but it will not restore the property any more than your loved ones."

The Evening Chit-Chat

PREPARING FOR OLD AGE.

There are many things in all this wide world any sadder than old age without any of the dignity, the sweetness, the philosophy and the unselfishness which ought to be old age's compensation for the loss of the infinite riches of youth?

If there is, I have yet to see it. A little old lady has come into my orbit lately. When I first came into contact with her, I had the natural feeling of friendship, pity and kindness which one is likely to entertain towards a fragile, white-haired, little woman, especially if she is alone. When I came to approach her more closely, I found that she deserved such sympathy and friendship far less than many younger people, for she was nothing but a crabbed, self-centered, sour little creature, more selfish and more oblivious of other people's interests than any thoughtless young person I ever knew.

What a tragedy! For where will that woman find friends? Youth wins friends in spite of selfishness because of the eternal and inescapable charm of youth.

But old age must offer some measure at least of sweetness and unselfishness to attract friends. I suspect some one of my readers is saying indignantly, "That is all wrong. Youth ought to respect and be kind to old age no matter how crabbed or unlovable it is."

Quite so, my friend, that is all true, but I can tell you something still truer. Youth ought to respect and be kind to old age no matter how crabbed or unlovable it is, but youth will not. I am writing, you know, about life, not about theories.

Now, you and I and all of us are growing old. Unless an all-powerful Something intervenes—an intervention which most of us do not like to contemplate—we are going to be old in a comparatively few years.

Now what kind of old folks are we going to be? I surely hope we will all be the kind whom the young people love to include among their friends, but how can we make sure of that?

Well, for one thing, we can cultivate our interest in other people; we can try to grow more sympathetic and understanding as the years go by; we can try to broaden our intellectual interests, and above all, we can try to look on the bright side of things.

The little old lady of whom I write was huddled up in her house one bright Spring morning brooding over her troubles, when one of her neighbors called to her. "Come out to walk with me and forget your troubles." "I don't want to forget them," said the unhappy little creature. "I love to brood over my troubles."

And yet that woman probably wonders why she doesn't have more friends! Let's not prepare for that kind of an old age.

about two years ago gave up the girl he was going with to go with me again. I liked this young man better than any of the boys I have ever met and my mother liked him too, until he started to go with me again. Now she does not want me to go with him at all. He has very good habits and makes a fine salary and there is nothing to be said against him, but she does not like the idea of a girl going with a young man with whom she has broken up before. I don't like to displease mother. What should I do?

HELEN: If that is your mother's only reason follow your own heart and good sense. If you expect to marry, you are going to like some one man better than all others, some day, and mother might as well like him too.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—I have an engagement with a young man from a large city. He is accustomed to the society of the rich ladies. What shall I say to him after the theatre? (2)—What should one order in the cafe after the theatre? (3)—How may I ask him to call again? (4) Recently a young man forced me to receive his kisses. Should I go with him again? (5)—Do you think it sounds bad for a girl to say she has a "date" with a man? (6)—Is there any harm in permitting a man to put his arm about a girl while out for a walk?

BLUE EYES. (1)—Tell him you enjoyed the play and discuss it with him. (2) He should do the ordering. If he asks you to order tell him you will be quite satisfied with his choice except, of course, that you don't drink wines. (3)—Simply say that you will be pleased to see him again at your home. (4)—Not if you respect yourself. (5)—It sounds vulgar. (6)—It cheapens a girl when she is not engaged to the man.

BREAKFAST MEATS.

Now that the cool fall days are upon us, we will begin to enjoy again a little heavier breakfast. Here are a few for variety:

Ham Balls.—Take a cup of cooked ham, finely chopped, add a cup of bread crumbs, two cups of cooked potatoes, mashed fine, three tablespoons of butter, two eggs and a dash of cayenne. Melt the butter, add all the ingredients and beat until light. Shape into small flat cakes, dip in egg and crumbs and fry brown.

Ham Toast.—Take half a cup of finely minced ham, half a teaspoonful of anchovy paste, a dash of mace and salt, if needed. Add half a cup of milk and a beaten egg. Stir until thick, then spread on dry buttered toast. A poached egg may be added for a more substantial meal.

Frizzled Ham.—When the ham is half done in frying, sprinkle with flour and fry brown. When brown, add a tablespoonful of made mustard to the gravy and boiling water to cover the ham. Simmer five minutes and serve on a hot platter.

Broiled Lamb's Liver.—Cut the liver in thin slices, cover with olive oil and let soak an hour. Drain, season, dip in crumbs and broil.

Mince Lamb With Egg.—Chop cold roast lamb very fine, season with salt, pepper and a bit of mint. Reheat in gravy, adding a little butter. Spread thinly on slices of buttered toast. Place a poached egg on each slice, sprinkle with chopped parsley and serve.

Sausages Baked in Potatoes.—Prick sausages and brown in a hot spider. Core large potatoes and draw the sausages through the hole made, then bake. This is a pleasant surprise for the person peeling the potato.

How to Have the Best Cough Syrup and Save $2, by Making It at Home.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take one pint of granulated sugar, add ½ pint of warm water and stir about 2 minutes, you have as good syrup as money could buy.

If you will then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much good syrup as you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps indefinitely.

And you will find it the best cough syrup you ever used—even in whooping cough. You can feel it take hold—usually stops the most severe cough in 24 hours. It is just laxative enough, has a good tonic effect, and taste is pleasant. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

It is a splendid remedy, too, for whooping cough, croup, hoarseness, asthma, chest pains, etc.

Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in quinine and all the healing pine elements. No other preparation will work in this formula.

arm around a boy when walking home from a party? (3)—Is it right to let a boy take a girl home from a party?

ANXIOUS. (1)—By his consideration and respect for a girl, and by always wanting to be with her. (2)—Yes—if the boy is not over eight years old. (3)—If the girl is under 18 she should be chaperoned, though if both the boy and girl are sensible there is no particular harm.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am married but not satisfied with my husband. I have been married twice, but am no more satisfied with my second husband than with the first, because I fell in love with another married man when I was still a girl and we have been lovers ever since. He is several years older than I, but I love him and know he loves me as much as his wife. I go to see him as often as I can and have him come to see me occasionally. Should other people interfere? Am I doing wrong?

LITTLE DUTCHIE. Are you wrong? By all the laws of God and man you are doing a horrible wrong, to yourself, to your husband and to that other man's wife, to all society. I am astounded that a woman can write such a letter! You cannot have any sense of the sacredness of your womanhood, or of the marriage relation. As for that other man—it is not love he feels for you. This newspaper would not print in plain English what he thinks of you. A man who really loved you would tell you to forget him and do your duty to your husband.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 18 and have been going to parties, ect., since I was 16. My mother always liked the boys I went out with. For about six months I went with a young man almost steady. My mother liked him very much, but when I broke up with him, one of the boys I went with

A WORD ABOUT THE SHOP GIRL.

A certain brave little business girl writes me taking exception to the published remark of a society girl who was interviewed by a newspaper reporter.

It seems that there had been parental objection or some sort of hitch in the society girl's love affair, but in spite of all obstacles the engagement was recently announced. The families of the young folks being prominent socially and commercially, it was naturally a matter of interest to the newspapers; for a newspaper is really a sort of licensed gossip for the community, and no matter how much the newspaper is abused, the fact remains that nobody would do without it and one would have it a whit less gossip.

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

A newspaper reporter called upon the bride-to-be for information concerning the wedding, etc., also concerning the even more interesting matter of obstacles overcome. The reporter's first polite questions were parried. Finally he kindly inquired: "Was it a case of love at first sight?"

"How perfectly ridiculous!" the newly-affianced young woman is said to have exclaimed. "How absurd! Just like a $8-a-week shop girl!"

Now my business girl, correspondent takes exception to the society girl's reported remark, in this way: "I wish I could write something about the narrow-mindedness of that girl. I believe, if the truth were known, she is not capable of holding down a $8-a-week job. I have as much education as she has, and I am in business for myself. But I do not think that girls who are struggling for a living or who did not have the chance of good schooling should be compelled to take talk from anyone like that. I think the girl who said that is simply foolish but there ought to be some way of showing such girls how wrong and unkind they are."

It does seem too bad that because one girl is fortunately placed—and that not through any particular merit of her own—she should feel herself superior to those whose benefits are less and who must struggle for a livelihood.

The shop girl's emotions are just as sacred to her as are those of the higher bred girl's; her love affair is sweet and tender; her lover as well as worth living, and her inner life as beautiful even though to outward view it must present many sordid details.

The average shop girl is as modest, and reluctant to have her private life and sentiments probed as any society girl of high degree. In fact, if the same percentage of shop girls sought notoriety as eagerly as those in the various ranks of upper-london, there might be more justification in accusing the former of lack of refinement.

Making Travel Interesting

A GROUP of tourists were looking at a bear eating his evening meal near one of the hotels in Yellowstone Park.

"Is there only one?" asked a young girl of the party regretfully. The soldier on guard looked at her a minute, then said cheerfully:

"There'll be more after a while. That fellow is the King of the Park. He won't let any of the others feed while he gets his supper. He's a grizzly."

"Gracious!" said the tourists, stepping back.

"After he goes there'll be about thirty or more come out."

"My!" exclaimed the tourists, properly thrilled.

"That one looks nice and soft and woolly," said the young girl. "I'd like to pat him."

"You'd better not," said the soldier. "Some of these bears are very vicious."

"Is that the reason you have a gun?" asked one of the tourists.

"Yes," replied the soldier.

"Could you hit him?" laughed a man.

"The best sharpshooters are put on duty here," replied the soldier.

"What's that medal for that you are wearing?" asked the girl, glancing at a silver cross on the soldier's breast.

"For marksmanship," replied the soldier.

The tourists were duly impressed.

"I thought no one was allowed to shoot a bear," objected the man, skeptically.

"When I have witnesses to prove that he is getting dangerous I can shoot him at twenty-five yards. But if nobody is about I have to show marks of violence."

"Goodness!" exclaimed the tourists, looking at the bear.

"The idea," objected the girl, "of having to let a bear claw you before you can shoot him."

"Those are the rules," replied the soldier. "And even then only a soldier can shoot the bear. A bear climbed into some campers' wagon the other night and broke all the crockery, and the only way they could drive him off was by heaving rocks at him. Even then he stampeded their horses, and they never did get two of them."

"How dreadful!" said the tourists.

"What do you do with a bear when you do shoot him?" asked the skeptical man.

"Pour coal oil on him and burn him up."

Then, feeling he made the show sufficiently thrilling, the soldier turned on his heel and resumed his march, up and down the wire stretched to mark the bear's dining room, and upon which were hung pieces of redannel to denote danger.

"I think that he is real brave," said the girl, as the party returned to the hotel, "to stay so near those dangerous bears."

"Fuh!" said the skeptical man.

great price when we remember that the crop must be watched and tended with as much care as a baby. If it is stored in a damp place it mildews; if it becomes too dry the flavor is impaired.

Thirty days and much chemical knowledge are required, to produce the vanilla flavor in the form housewives know it in.

France has always been the patron of special industries and it is there that the finest extracts are made and there, too, they are used in perfection. The French claim that delicate odors are health promoters and worthy of the greatest attention, just as an artist paints a picture to please the eye, or the musician composes sweet sounds to delight the ear, does the French chef plan to please the sense of taste and smell.

The high degree of satisfaction felt in eating delicately seasoned food is proof of them of a refined mind.

As all fine extracts are combined with alcohol to hold their fragrance, and as alcohol is volatile, the French never waste their extracts by adding them to the uncooked food to generate in the processes of cooking, as the "prodigal" American invariably does. Instead, the cake is first baked and then the flavoring extract is added to it by rubbing a bit of cloth moistened with the extract over it.

Puddings are flavored after they leave the direct heat of the fire, and then have the flavors added, when possible, after they are partly frozen. Zest is the name given to flavored sugars; as lemon zest is made by placing the yellow, thinly peeled rind of a lemon in a bowl and bruising it with sugar until the oil of the fruit is expressed and absorbed by the sugar. Orange and other fruit zests are made in the same way.

To add a single flavor to the variety of viands is a costly procedure, yet cost is never counted when public caprice is to be gratified. Each flavoring essence is obtained from some different flower, fruit or plant; in their manufacture chemistry plays the most important part, but before the flavors reach the chemists they must pass through the hands of the growers, pickers, packers, exporters and importers. Vanilla is one of the most easily obtained of all flavors, for the vanilla plant is found in Mexico, South America and the Indies, and is prepared for the first market by cheap native labor. The Mexican Indians cultivated the orchid when Cortez found them, by tying it on scrub oaks, where it grew in the air the beautiful lilac-shaped white blossoms filling the air with an odor like roses. Finally the blossoms formed into the long, green beans that were picked while still green and dried and shrunken just as we do today.

Fruit juices make excellent flavors and give novelty to many dishes that have become commonplace. One thing more we might well copy from the careful European cook is the proper combinations of colors and flavors; a suggestion will open up many possibilities to the eyes of the clever amateur cook.

When using lemon or orange flavors, tint the decorations of your cake or pudding, yellow or a rich cream; when rose flavor is used use rose tints; almond flavor requires spoozy royal icing and decorations. Many times the palate is charmed through the eye as much as through the sense of taste.

"SUGGESTION THAT FOOD IS BAD WILL MAKE IT SO."

Constant suggestion that a given food is beneficial aids digestion, and suggestion that any food is bad will make it so. It is especially important that children should be impressed with the fact that certain food is good for them, that such foods are all they need and that no others should be eaten. The same principle applies with adults. The practice of reciting the injurious effects of certain foods or of mentioning the fact that certain foods have disagreed, is to be avoided, since such suggestion though its effect is slight, yet if continued, may become serious. It is especially necessary that the sick should be impressed with the fact that the food chosen is particularly good. The desire for certain foods should not be ignored, but advice on selection will be accepted by any intelligent patient.

Sick Women

When shown positive and reliable proof that a certain remedy had cured many cases of female ills, wouldn't any sensible woman conclude that the same remedy would also benefit her if suffering with the same trouble?

Here are five letters from southern women which prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

LETTER FROM VIRGINIA.
Elliston, Va.—"I feel it my duty to express my thanks to you and your great medicine. I was a sufferer from female troubles and had been confined in bed over one third of my time for ten months. I could not do my housework and had fainting spells so that my husband could not leave me alone for five minutes at a time."

Now I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, id Blood Purifier. Whenever I see a suffering woman I want to tell her what these medicines have done for me and I will always speak a good word for them."—Mrs. ROBERT BLANKENSHIP, Elliston, Montgomery Co., Va.

LETTER FROM LOUISIANA.
New Orleans, La.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was troubled with hot flashes, weak and dizzy feelings, backache and irregularities. I would get up in the morning feeling tired out and not fit to do anything."

Since I have been taking your Compound and Blood Purifier I feel all right. Your medicines are worth their weight in gold."—Mrs. GASTON BLONDEAU, 1541 Polymia St., New Orleans, La.

LETTER FROM FLORIDA.
Wauchula, Fla.—"Some time ago I wrote to you giving you my symptoms, headache, backache, bearing down, and discomfort in walking, caused by female troubles."

I got two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a package of Sani-Flush and that was all I used to make me a well woman. I am satisfied that if I had done like a good many women, and had not taken your remedies, I would have been a great sufferer. But I started in time with the right medicine and got well. It did not cost me much either. I feel that you are a friend to all women and I would rather use your remedies than have a doctor."—Mrs. MATTIE HODNOT, Box 406, Wauchula, Florida.

LETTER FROM WEST VIRGINIA.
Martinsburg, W. Va.—"I am glad to say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done wonders for my mother, daughter and myself."

I have told dozens of people about it and my daughter says that when she hears a girl complaining with cramps, she tells her to take your Compound."—Mrs. MARY A. HOCKENBERRY, 713 N. 3rd St., Martinsburg, W. Va.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM VIRGINIA.
Newport News, Va.—"About five years ago I was troubled with such pains and bleeding every month that I would have to go to bed."

A friend told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I soon found relief. The medicine strengthened me in every way and my doctor approved of my taking it.

I will be glad if my testimony will help some one who is suffering from female weakness."—Mrs. W. J. BLAYTON, 1029 Hampton Ave., Newport News, Va.

Forty Years Ago

Janesville Daily Gazette, October 17, 1872.—The Beloit Crescent contains the following account of a Janesville party which passed through that city a short time since. The boys left Janesville with a larger passenger list than was reported at Beloit, but two of them were captured by their parents near Atton and were induced to return home. Following is the story of the party as given by the boys themselves.

over the dam and at noon our reporter found the craft at anchor above the upper bridge, where he interviewed one of the navigators. He found them well supplied with a variety of provisions consisting of bread, butter, lobsters, pickles, and enough to last them till they got to St. Louis. Their boat is a very handy built craft of their own workmanship and their outfit of sails, tents, and guns seem very complete. They expect to reach the mouth of Rock River in about a week and New Orleans in three weeks and are taking the tedious trip just for pleasure. We imagine that the boys will find something besides fun on their way and do not envy them their hard trip. Perhaps it will teach them to stay at home the next time. We hardly see how it is to do them any good otherwise but we wish them good luck.

There was a good attendance at the opera house last evening to witness the opening exhibition of the Georgia minstrels and the entertainment was superior to anything we've seen or heard in the minstrelsy line with the single exception of the singing which was hardly up to the standard. But in the laughable delineation of negro character the negro is far ahead of his white competitor who have so long maintained a monopoly on the business.

Thomas Leach has returned from New York city where he succeeded in purchasing a winter stock of dry goods at unusually low rates. His customers will receive the benefit of this reduction. The goods are now arriving.

The liberals and democrats of the first assembly district of Rock county held their convention in Footville, Monday and put in nomination Dr. J. M. Evans of Janesville, for member of the assembly in opposition of David Mills, the republican nominee.

BY WALT MASON

The times are swift, so help me Bob, and you can't be sleeping if you would, get hold of a job that's really worth the keeping. You'll have to jump yourself, old scout, achieving and pursuing, and putting laziness to rout, or there'll be nothing doing. Some youths acquire a punk renown that gives poor satisfaction; they loaf and languish in the town, and always shy at action. They talk of wrestling and of scorp and other games, a-brewing, and when they try to get a snap, there's always nothing doing. Some clerks are always much afraid that they may, absent-minded, do more than that for which they're paid; such lads, by folly blundered, will run against a snag some day that they'll be always running when they request increase of pay there will be nothing doing. Oh, many of the village pets had habits of acquiring cigars and loaded cigarettes they're diligently firing; they're betting on some dinky race, they're playing pool and chewing; and when they want to get a place, there will be nothing doing.

You know the story the comb tells. It's a very discouraging story, too. Day by day, a few more strands are added, of hair that is turning grey, losing its vitality, its strength and its health. Grey hair is an unbecoming old age. Natural pride should have its own say. You wish to look young and it is your DUTY to appear so. You can't even LOOK young if the silver threads begin to show. The Lady of the Mount

by FREDERIC S. ISHAM
AUTHOR OF "THE STROLLERS," "UNDER THE ROSE," ETC.
ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WATERS
COPYRIGHT 1908 BY THE BOBBY-MERRILL CO.
CHAPTER I.

A Chance-Encounter.
"Don't you know, boy, you ought not to get in my way?"
The tide was at its ebb; the boats stranded afar, and the lad addressed had started, with a fish—his wage—in one hand, to walk to shore, when, passing into the shadow of the rampart of the Governor's Mount, from the opposite direction a white horse swung suddenly around a corner of the stone masonry and bore directly upon him. He had but time to step aside; as it was, the animal grazed his shoulder, and the boy, about to give utterance to a natural remonstrance, lifted his eyes to the offender. The words were not forthcoming; surprised, he gazed at a tiny girl, of about eleven, perched fairy-like on the broad back of the heavy steed.

"Don't you know you ought not to get in my way?" she repeated impatiently.
The boy, tall, dark, unkempt as a young savage, shifted awkwardly; his black eyes, restless enough ordinarily, expressed a sudden shyness in the presence of this unexpected and dainty creature.

"I didn't see you," he half stammered.
"Well, you should have!" And again the little lady frowned, shook her disordered golden curls disapprovingly and gazed at him, a look of censure in her brown eyes. "But perhaps you don't know who I am," she went on with a lift of the patrician doll-like features. "I don't think you do, or you wouldn't stand there like a booby, without taking off your hat." More embarrassed, he removed a worn cap while she continued to regard him with the reverse of approval. "I am the Comtesse Elise," she observed; "the daughter of the Governor of the Mount."

"Oh!" said the boy, and his glance shifted to the most important and insistent feature of the landscape. Carrying its clustered burden of houses and palaces, a great rock reared itself from the monotony of the bare and blinding sands. Now an oasis in the desert, ere night was over he knew the in-rushing waters would convert it into an island; claim it for the sea! A strange kingdom, yet a mighty one, it belonged alternately to the land and to the ocean. With the sky, however, it enjoyed perpetual affiliation, for the heavens were ever wooing it; now winding, pretty ribbons of light about its air-drawn castles; then kissing it with the tender, soft red glow of celestial fervor.

"Yes, I live right on top among the clouds; in a castle, with dungeons underneath, where my father puts the bad people who don't like the nobles and King Louis XVI. But where," categorically, "do you live?"
His gaze turned from the points and turrets and the clouds she spoke of—that seemed to linger about the lofty summits—to the mainland, perhaps a mile distant.

"There!" he said, and specifically indicated a dark fringe, like a cloud on the lowlands.
"In the woods! How odd!" She looked at him with faint interest. "And don't the bears bother you? Once when I wanted to see what the woods were like, my nurse told me they were filled with terrible bears who would eat up little girls. I don't have a nurse any more," irrelevantly, "only a governess who came from the court of Versailles, and Beppo. Do you know Beppo?"
"No."

"I don't like him," she confided. "He is always listening. But why do you live in the woods?"
"Because!" The reason faltered him. "And didn't you ever live anywhere else?"

A shadow crossed the dark young face. "Once," he said.
"I suppose the bears know you," she speculated, "and that is the reason they let you alone. Or, perhaps, they are like the wolf in the fairy-tale. Did you ever hear of the kind-hearted wolf?"
He shook his head.

"The very spot!" he said, looking around him.
A moment the boy waited, then turned on his heel and, without a word, walked away. Soon an angle in the sea-wall, girdling the Mount, hid him from view.
"Why didn't you strike him?" Quietly the child regarded the man. "Were you afraid?" Beppo's answering look was not one of affection for his charge. "Who is he?"
"An idle vagabond."
"What is his name?"
"I don't know."
"Don't you?"
A queer expression sprang into his eyes. "One can't remember every peasant-brat," he returned evasively. She considered him silently; then: "Why did you say, 'The very spot'?" she asked.

CHAPTER II.

An Echo of the Past.
Immovable on its granite base, the great rock, or "Mount," as it had been called for centuries, stood some distance from the shore in a vast bay on the northwestern coast of France. To the right, a sweep of arid and marsh stretched seaward, until lost in the distance; to the left, lay the dense Desaurac forest, from which an arm of land, thickly wooded, reached out in seeming endeavor to divide the large bay into two smaller basins. But the ocean, jealous of territory already conquered, twice in twenty-four hours rose to beat heavily on this dark promontory, and, in the angry hiss of the waters, was a reminder of a persistent purpose. Here and there, through the ages, had the shoreline of the bay, as well as the neighboring curvatures of the coast, yielded to the assaults of the sea; the Mount alone, solidly indifferent to blandishment or attack, maintained an unvarying aspect.

For centuries a monastery and fortress of the monks, at the time of Louis XVI. the Mount had become a stronghold of the government, strongly ruled by one of its most inexorable nobles. Since his appointment many years before to the post, my lord, the governor of the rock, had ever been regarded as a man who conceded nothing to the people and pursued only the tenor of his way. During the long period of his reign he committed but one indiscretion; generally regarded as a man confirmed in apathy for the gentler sex, he suddenly, when already past middle age, wedded. Speculation concerning a step so unlooked for was naturally rife.

In novel and hut was it whispered the bride Claire, only daughter of the Comtesse de la Mart, had wept at the altar, but that her mother had appeared complacent, as well she might; for the Governor of the Mount and the surrounding country was both rich and powerful; his ships swept far and wide, even to the Orient, while the number of metayers, or petty farmers that paid him tribute, constituted a large community. Other gossips, bending over peat fires within mud walls, affirmed—beneath their breath, lest the spies of the well-hated lord of the North might hear them!—that the more popular, though impoverished Seigneur Desaurac had been the favored suitor with the young woman herself, but that the family of the bride had found him undesirable. The Desaurac fortune, once large, had so waned that little remained save the rich, though heavily encumbered lands and, in the heart of the forest, a time-worn, crumbling castle.

Thus it came to pass the marriage of the lady to the Governor was celebrated in the jeweled Gothic church crowning a medley of palaces, chapels and monastery on the Mount; that the rejected Seigneur Desaurac, gazing across the strip of water—for the tide was at its full—separating the rocky fortress from the land, shrugged his shoulders angrily and contemptuously, and that not many moons later, as if to show disdain of position and title, took to his home an orphaned peasant lass. That a simple church ceremony had preceded this step was both affirmed and denied; hearsay described a marriage at a neighboring village; more malicious gossip discredited it. A man of rank! A woman of the soil! Feudal custom forbade belief that the proper sort of nuptial had been tied.

The Chronicles of Addington Peace

By B. FLETCHER ROBINSON
Co-Author with A. Conan Doyle of "The Hound of the Baskervilles," Etc.
Copyright by W. G. Chapman.

"Exactly," Mr. Bulstrode—no more than the excursionist who throws out a glass bottle intends to brain the man walking by the line.

The truth was clear enough now. In some strange fashion this man had killed his brother. I stepped back a pace instinctively.
"You see," he continued, "brother William had, under circumstances of no immediate importance, appropriated my jade spear. I made up my mind to get it back. I knew the hour at which he lunched, and leaving my motor in the road I walked down the avenue, hoping to find the front door open and no one about. I had a successful start. The front door was ajar. I went in, took the spear from the wall, and set out back to my car. I was some fifty yards down the drive when I heard a yell and there was brother William tumbling out of the porch, revolver in hand.

"It startled me, for he had the most devilish of tempers; but though I was the elder man, I knew I had the pace of him, and set off running. When I reached the entrance gates and looked back he was nowhere to be seen. I took it that he had thought better of it and gone back to lunch.
"I was driving the car myself, having left the chauffeur behind, as I did not wish him to know what I was about. I started up the engines, jumped into the seat, put the spear beside me, and let her go. We came round that corner at a good thirty miles an hour, and there was brother William in the road, waving his revolver and cursing me for a thief. He had run down through the Wilderness to cut me off.

"I give you my word I was frightened, for I knew him and his temper. I took up the spear, and as I passed I threw it at him anyhow. Let him keep it, and be d—d to him, I thought. I wasn't going to have a hole drilled in me for any jade ever carved. I never saw what happened, for in that second I was off the road and only pulled the car straight with difficulty. The spear must have struck him end on; and I was traveling thirty miles an hour.

"My niece sent me a wire. When I received it, I understood what had happened. I was in a blue funk about the business. I meant to get out of it if I could. You see I am hiding nothing. I told my man to take the chains off the motor—I had a thought for the tracks I might have left—and came back to find out how the land lay. Well, you know the rest."

"You have done yourself no harm, Mr. Bulstrode, by this confession," said Inspector Addington Peace.
"Thank you. And now, if you will jump in, I will drive you to the police station. You will want to get Boyne out and put me in, eh, Inspector?"
He was still laughing in that high-pitched voice of his when the car faded into the night.

It was not until the next day that Peace gave me his explanation over our pipes in my studio. It is interesting enough to set down, briefly.

"There were many points in the favor of Boyne," he said. "Miss Sherrick's story not only coincided with that told us by Cullen, but it also explained much that the butler considered suspicious. The young man left the drive hoping to meet Miss Sherrick. Cullen told me that Boyne asked where she was as he left, and was informed somewhere in the upper garden. He failed to find her, however, and probably concluded she had gone in to lunch. Boyne said he was walking down through the Wilderness when he heard the scream. Suppose this were a lie, then, how could he have obtained the spear? Was he a man of such phenomenal strength as to use it in so deadly a fashion? You observe the difficulties.

"It was when I was upstairs examining the body that the idea occurred to me. The force used in throwing the spear was abnormal. Either the murderer must have been a man of remarkable physique, or he must have thrown the spear from a rapidly moving vehicle. You remember the notices that are displayed in railway carriages begging passengers not to throw bottles from the window which will imperil the lives of plate-layers. It is not in the force of the throw but in the pace of the train that the danger lies. It was a possible parallel.

"And here I made a remarkable discovery. On closely inspecting the shaft of the spear, I found a smear of lubricating oil such as motorists use. It suggested that a man who had lately been attending to the machinery of a car had been handling the weapon. Had one of the group under possible suspicion anything to do with motors or machinery? Not one.

"I had noticed the jade collections in the hall. This spearhead was of unusual beauty. Could it have come from the colonel's own collection? He had not taken it with him when he ran toward the Wilderness, loading his revolver. Why didn't he so run thus armed? Had he been robbed?
"Yet the thief had not passed that way. Cullen would have seen him, if he had done so. Was the colonel endeavoring to cut him off?
"I found the motor-tracks in the drying mud—unusual tracks, sure you, for the driver had run on the road, circling the place where the colonel had stood. I traced them easily by the chain marks on the tires. They led to the front gate, and just beyond it the car had stopped for some time close to the hedge. Lubricating oil had dripped on the road while it waited. The case was becoming plainer.

"My talk with Bulstrode's chauffeur made it self-evident. The information of Miss Sherrick and her uncle's own explanation as to his quarrel with his brother over the spear swept away my last doubt. Do you understand?"

"Yes," I said. "It seems simple now. Bulstrode has had bad luck, though. Things look black against him."

"I think he will be all right," said Addington Peace. "His story has the merit of being not only easily understandable, but true."

"And Boyne?"

"I saw him meet Miss Sherrick. It was enough to make an old bachelor repent his ways, Mr. Phillips. Believe me, there is a great happiness of which we cannot guess—we lonely men."
